Evolved Media Solutions

Evolved Media is part of an international group that provides professional services to the publisher, whether they be periodicals, newspapers, corporate publishers or indeed any form of publishing that might require some workflow enhancement and automation.

At Evolved Media we aim to be your partner. We will help you analyse your tools and workflows, introduce new flexible technologies that will enable you to evolve your business model and meet the challenges of producing products for online and print.

We want to be at your side to help you explore your business and technology requirements, in order to help you plan your workflow strategy and ensure you can create and deliver content and products cost effectively, efficiently, and flexibly.

We can provide support for implementation of tools from simple technical advice and product support, right up to full system integration and project management.

Publishing Tool Solutions

Today publishing workflows demand not just excellent tools and systems but that those tools can work together to enhance business processes

At Evolved Media we recognise that there is no one solution that does everything. Often publishers will have a number of different tools and systems which have been built up over time, other publishers will require an end-to-end solution and others just one component.

We have a range of products we can supply and integrate into your business.

Research and Analysis

We have a number of experienced consultants that have extensive experience in the industry and the implementation of publishing technology solutions. We can provide consultants to help you review your current tools and workflows and review your requirements.

Our services can include ongoing support in order to ensure the smooth running of your workflow architecture and its continued development.

Evolved Media Solutions is part of an international group of companies with extensive experience in implementing Publishing solutions worldwide, and focuses primarily on delivering software integration and services to the newspaper, magazine and book publishing market. Evolved Media offers a range of solutions to enable publishers to further optimize their workflows and to increase productivity.

For example, WoodWing's Smart Connection Enterprise allows customers to build a highly integrated workflow in conjunction with TELL's Flat Planning and Publication Management solution TIMONE System. It integrates planning, wire, the editorial process and design, as well as publication to both print and electronic media.

System Integration

We can integrate tools such as workflow and asset management with sales order systems in order to provide seamless integrated workflows, that will enhance transparency of the publishing cycle and increase flexibility for multi-channel output.

Software Development

Perhaps there isn't one tool which specifically meets your requirements, in which case we have experienced developers that can tailor tools and interfaces to meet your needs.

Support

Of course choosing and installing a system is not the end of the story. Systems need to be supported day-to-day to ensure their smooth operation. Over time, systems need to be developed and upgraded to meet the changing requirements of the industry.
